

THE SOLDIER CANDIDATE.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles' Name Presented for Consideration of Convention.

MAN OF UNBLEMISHED RECORD.

Has Played a Great Part in His Country's History—His Work in the West.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—In nominating Gen. Nelson A. Miles for president, Hon. David Overmeyer of Kansas, the brilliant orator from the Sunflower state, spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention—I nominate for president a man of unblemished record. He is also an adopted son of the republic, and a friend of mankind. A man of great ability, of great attainments, and of great achievements. A soldier, a statesman, a patriot, a faithful servant, who has served his country long and well, who has fought for his country, and who has bled for his country, and who has through long years earned the wreath of fame with which I ask you to deck his noble brow.

Spurs from that nursery of American nobility, the American farm; descended from a long line of devoted and heroic patriots; born to an inheritance of lofty chivalry; at his country's call he bounded to the battlefield a flaming young Hercules.

Without a regular military education, at first rejected as too young to be a captain, in three years thereafter he was a major-general.

A CITIZEN WARRIOR.

A citizen warrior, he proved a hero, against those stern, unyielding front of steel and flame the flower of a foe as brave as ever bore arms was hurled, again and again, in vain. Wounded, Fair Oaks, severely wounded at Fredericksburg, he was again and again mortally wounded at Chancellorsville, borne from the field as if dead, with crimson laurels still upon his forehead, to fight on still upon bloody fields (and to receive the praises of every great captain of the Civil war.

AN INDIAN FIGHTER.

At the close of the Civil war the whole plain for hundreds of miles east of the Rocky mountains, was covered with hostile Indians, murdering, torturing, carrying devastation and despair in all directions. The west, its settlements and development of the region impossible. The man I present was sent against them. With sleepless vigilance, with tireless energy, with consummate strategy, with unrelenting purpose, with fortitude unexpressed in the annals of time, with courage that faced death at every step; at mountain wilds and through waterless wastes, where men famishing did taste their own blood to quench their thirst; through southern sands and northern snows; through storm and rock and the earth and hid the sky; he and his men pursued and overthrew the fierce Cheyenne, the terrible Sioux, and the bloody Arapaho, driving their broken remnants beyond the boundaries of the United States; hurling Sitting Bull into British America and Geronimo into Mexico, and capturing him there, thus breaking forever the power of the barbarian, clearing the plains of the cruel, implacable beleaguering savage; and opening their vast areas to the peaceful millions who now inhabit them and the unnumbered millions who shall follow. From this day to this he saved the thanks of Arizona, New Mexico, Montana and Kansas.

CICERO QUOTED.

Cicero has said: "Grecian nations give the honors of the gods to those men who have slain tyrants; and shall we hesitate to crown with the chaplet he has won, him who slew the dragons of the wilderness and conquered the demons of the desert?"

HEAD OF THE ARMY.

Having pacified the plains he rose through merit alone to the head of the army. To him the armies of Spain surrendered. He liberated Cuba, and carried glad tidings of peace and liberty to Porto Rico. Having opened the desert to civilization, with the eye of a prophet and the wisdom of a statesman, he paved the way to remove from its parched and desolate face the old despair, and caused it to answer the touch of the war with glorious bloom, with ample crops, and smiling plenty. While others were dreaming of the wonders he had done him Egypt, Assyria, Persia, India, China and Japan sustained enormous populations by scientific and judicious control of the natural supply of water. And he has told us recently that the money squandered in misgovernment of so-called colonies would water all of our arid lands, or build highways for the whole country. A lover of nature, he pleads for trees and fields and fruits and harvests. In his solicitude for the welfare of the whole people, there is profound affection for the human race, an undying devotion to those institutions which protect and shelter the weak and the poor from cruelty, avarice and ambition. Filial and fraternal, he pleads for health and home, and all the blessed ties of family and friendship, and all the sacred sentiments and tender sympathies, and exalted and reverent virtues of domestic life. The hero of an hundred battles he emerges from a lifetime of military service the nation's greatest champion of peace. War has not blunted his sensibilities, perverted his sentiments or hardened his heart, but it has developed in his great heart pity and mercy, compassion and consideration.

STOOD BEFORE KINGS.

At the command of his country he stood before kings; he has circled the globe and visited, officially, every civilized nation beneath the sun and witnessed the mighty pageants of earth. Yet neither the splendors of royalty, nor the magnificence of imperial power could tempt his fealty to free institutions or lure him from the path of democracy. With unshaken faith in human nature, he cherishes the ideals of his youth and the traditions of the fathers of the republic. Though he has traversed every land and sailed on every sea, yet, "loves the while this free cosmopolitan, old friends, old themes, and keeps his boyhood dreams in sight."

Time has not staled him; years have not chilled him; experience has not soured him; the toils, the struggle, the trials of life have neither weakened nor wearied him.

A MAN OF RENOWN.

He is known to the country and to the world. He is famous. He is renowned. He is admired and loved by his countrymen. Strong and cheerful, stern yet tender, possessed of a comprehensive and wide information, accustomed to deep reflection; of gentle manners and engaging, fascinating and noble presence, he bears the stamp of an extraordinary man, whose splendid equipment and towering personality mark him for the gravest duties, the noblest service and the highest honors.

KNOWS THE WEST.

Born and reared in the east, his long service brought him in contact with the west for more than a quarter of a century. So man knows more of the west, its needs, its sympathies, and its aspirations; and no man knows the whole country any better than he. A born Democrat, he is in full sympathy with the Democratic party and its principles. An anti-imperialist, an anti-monopolist, devoted to the Constitution, an heroic patriot, he stands forth the peer of any man of his age.

FOR PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

He believes that there can be no just taxation without representation, that the people of the Philippine Islands should govern themselves, that they who deny liberty to others do not deserve it for themselves, and under a just God will not long retain it. That the great republic cannot hold millions of people permanently in bondage without losing first its political character and ultimately, its political life. That we should renounce at once and forever, the dangerous and deadly doctrine of imperialism, and that two days is sufficient time in which to set the Philippines free. He believes that the Constitution follows the flag; that the rights guaranteed by the Constitution are inviolable, wherever the flag symbolizes the civil power of the United States; and that the right of trial by jury is sacred, wherever the United States maintains civil government. He believes that the military should be kept in strict subordination to the civil power, and that no military concern of any kind should be a matter of concern to the military; that military despotism in Colorado menaces the rights of every American citizen, and is ominous of a reaction which may blot out the liberties of all men.

NOT FOR MILITARISM.

He believes that we should have a navy sufficient to defend our extensive coasts, and protect the rights of our people and our country everywhere; but he believes also, that upon every ship should be written "Millions for defense, but not one cent for conquest." He believes in the economic doctrines of the Democratic party. He believes that there should be no tax except for a public purpose. He believes that the industry and substance of the people should not be exploited by criminal combinations; that the law against conspiracies in restraint of trade should be enforced, and that offenders should be punished. He believes that labor is the base of the social system; that the base cannot be despised; that the laborers and producers are the salt of the earth; that their shoulders and strong arms support the whole fabric of civilization, that they constitute the great body of the people and must never be enslaved. He believes that the rights of those who are not citizens should not require that a limited and constantly diminishing number of persons should be permitted to monopolize all of the property of the country; or that a pampered banditti shall be permitted to defy the laws, absorb all wealth and enslave the people.

MISSION OF THE REPUBLIC.

He believes with the immortal Washington that the mission of the republic is peace, justice and liberty. That we teach peace by being peaceful, and we must teach justice by being just, that our main teaching liberty by maintaining our own liberties, and by never denying liberty to any people. He believes that this nation has been a world power from its birth, that it was a world power when that old bell rang out from Independence hall, liberty throughout the land, and to all the inhabitants thereof. That it was a world power when by the force of its example it caused republics to take the place of monarchies in all South America, Central America and Mexico. That it was a world power when by the force of its example, it caused the great French revolution, shattered absolutism, and gave to the Continental Europe, except Russia, constitutional government. That it was a world power when it inspired Japan, glorious Japan, to cast away the cruel bauble of autocracy, and adopt a free constitution, based upon the principles of democracy. That for more than 100 years it has been such a great world power that its light has so shown in the world that it has attracted to these shores the oppressed of all nations, drawn to this country by the justice of its laws and the wisdom of its character. But it has not been an imperial world power, and only the enemies of liberty would have it so. It has been a democratic power, a republic, a world power, the mother of republics, the fountain of democracy, and the home of "liberty enlightening the world." Our candidate must be a man against whom no faction will wage war; he must be a man whose eminence, experience and ability are a guarantee of his fitness for the presidency.

A man whose personality and whose career will arrest the attention and challenge the admiration of the people. If we nominate an unknown or prosaic candidate; titled mediocrity and counterfeit greatness will continue to call forth the applause of the multitude.

FILLS ALL REQUIREMENTS.

The man who fills in full measure the requirements of the hour is Gen. Nelson A. Miles. If nominated he will be the candidate of no faction, but of the whole Democratic party, and all patriots, he will receive the votes of every Democrat in the United States. He will receive the independent vote; the anti-imperialist peace vote, and the great citizen vote. He will receive the votes of all those leaders who represent the attempt of the acting president to degrade and dishonor him; and to degrade and dishonor other illustrious men, who have earned the praise and lasting gratitude of their countrymen. His name will reach the hearts and stir the blood of every comrade of the Civil war. They will recognize in his candidacy their last opportunity to vote for one of their own number for the great office of president of the United States. His candidacy will arouse the generous chivalric spirit of every man who wore the gray; with such a man as ex-Senator Harris for vice president, the ticket would make an epoch in our history. United in the manhood of the American valor, now the proud heritage of the whole American people, the survivors of that great struggle, both north and south, would rally to the Democratic standard and elect a man. The one man whom the Republicans fear is Miles. The one man whom the White House fears is Miles. They fear him because the envious shaft aimed at his heart by the acting president fell true, and he is nominated. They fear him because of his record, because of his personality, because the splendor of his career and the grandeur of his character would make the acting president as pale as his boasted exploits into utter insignificance. Any honest Democrat can carry the south. Miles can carry not only New York and New Jersey, but Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Wisconsin. He can carry the Pacific states and the mountain states. He can carry Nebraska and he can carry Kansas.

The people want for their president a man clean-hearted and high-souled; a man upright and honest of purpose, with ability of a high order. He is sufficient time in which to set the Philippines free. He believes that the Constitution follows the flag; that the rights guaranteed by the Constitution are inviolable, wherever the flag symbolizes the civil power of the United States; and that the right of trial by jury is sacred, wherever the United States maintains civil government. He believes that the military should be kept in strict subordination to the civil power, and that no military concern of any kind should be a matter of concern to the military; that military despotism in Colorado menaces the rights of every American citizen, and is ominous of a reaction which may blot out the liberties of all men.

A man who will restore the Constitution, revive the old verities, enforce the laws, re-establish justice, sever the head of monopoly and privilege and break the chain and set the captive free, and, once more, "peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none."

I nominate for president that peerless patriot, soldier and statesman, that noble, that incorruptible, that illustrious citizen, Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

JUDGE GRAY OF DELAWARE.

His Name Presented to the Convention by His Friend, L. Irving Handy.

A CITIZEN OF WHOLE COUNTRY.

Long Service in the Senate and on the Bench Eminently Fits Him For President.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—When Delaware was reached in the call of the roll of the states for presentation of candidates to the Democratic convention, L. Irving Handy of Wilmington responded and presented the name of Judge George Gray of his state. He spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention—Delaware offers to you her bravest, noblest and best. Ours is a small state and it would be idle to invite you to come to Delaware for a presidential candidate merely to win an electoral vote. But this is not a competition between states to determine which is largest or which is greatest. You are about to nominate not a state, but a man, and I submit that it is better to take a great man from a little state than a little man from a great state.

PRESENTED FOR CONSIDERATION.

Not because he is a Delawarean, although we exult in the knowledge that with us he has spent his life, but because he is great and good and true, we present George Gray for your consideration and decision. We present him as a citizen of the United States, for not one of all the states lies outside the boundaries of his patriotism and affection.

A BROAD MAN.

Make his broad and all the states which lie within the four corners of our continental domain will find that this man, who is in truth a citizen of Delaware, is in truth as broad as the continent in his sympathies and outlook. New York can find in him a candidate close to the hearts of her Democratic voters, and yet free from all factional bitterness and party divisions. His election to the presidency would be the triumph of no particular part of our party in that great commonwealth, but victory for the whole Democracy in the Empire State.

Nebraska might well be content to see him take our banner from the hands of her heroic son, who has twice gallantly carried it in the great fight, and rejoice to see that old banner in these new hands, on a kinder day and fairer field, carried to a complete and lasting victory—content because the Delawarean like the Nebraskan is a man of principle, not merely a man of policy, a man whose hope and faith and aspiration are in the great masses of the common people, and as president, his concern would be first to protect the rights and conserve the interests of the people whom God made, instead of using the government to promote unduly the persons made by act of legislature, commonly called corporations.

CHAMPION OF THE SOUTH.

The southern states might well rejoice to see him in the presidential chair. He is blood of their blood and bone of their bone. In mighty debate in the United States senate it was his true blade that slew outright once and forever the proposition to fetter, by a force bill, the southern people who were struggling face to face with the most threatening conditions that men ever confronted under free institutions. He does not live in a south to be elected to the presidency at this time, but he is far enough south to understand and appreciate the conditions which obtain in that broad, fair and hopeful portion of our common country. As I may say to the north, to the east and to the west, that with this citizen of the United States in the presidential office, they will each have a man of their own, in like manner and with manifest truth I say to you of the southern states that with him you, too, will have a man of your own once more in the White House.

ISLANDS WOULD BLESS HIM.

Not only the states which have a right to cast electoral votes would be blessed by such a president, but the islands of the sea would learn to bless his name. He believes in the rights of man. He believes in home rule. He has a passion for human liberty. He has a passion for self-government. Make him president and he will find a way by which every interest of this country will be protected and safeguarded, and the law and order of the distant islands will be permitted to taste at least the sweets of human liberty and home rule. They will know oppressors no more, and the Philippines itself will become a happy land like an evil dream which has passed.

NATIONS WOULD HONOR HIM.

All the nations of the earth will learn

A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

Endorses Pe-ru-na, the National Catarrh Remedy.

An Ex-Senator, Hon. M. C. Butler, Also is a Convert to the Good of Pe-ru-na.

Catarrh of Stomach From Coughs and Colds, and Other Ills Cured by Pe-ru-na When Other Medicines Failed.

Hon. M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, was United States Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., he says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna has won its way into thousands of homes and millions of hearts by its marvelous cures of catarrhal affections. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peruna cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as any other.

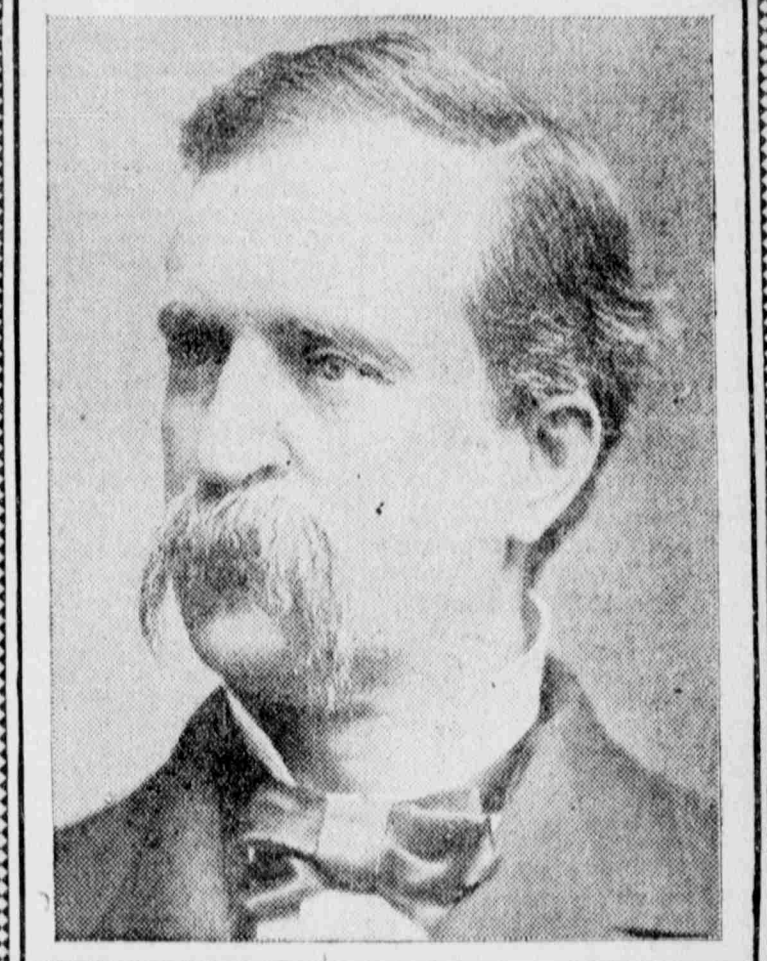

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

A Most Wonderful Cure of Dyspepsia Made by Pe-ru-na.

A. C. Lockhart, Corner Cottage Street and Thurston Road, Rochester, N. Y., writes:

"About fifteen years ago I commenced to be ailing with a species of dyspepsia and called on a physician, who gave me only temporary relief. 'I consulted another physician with no better results. 'I am now taking the fifth bottle of Peruna and have not an ache or a pain anywhere. My bowels move regularly every day and I have taken on eighteen pounds of flesh, my usual weight being 145 pounds. I was down at one time as low as one hundred and twenty-six pounds.'—A. C. Lockhart.

The only way to cure a disease is to strike at and get to the source of the indisposition. A cold led to run on and on induces catarrh and catarrh produces consumption. What is catarrh but a consumption of the vital life forces of ones body? Many people die from consumption, when, if the case were

HON. JOHN B. WEAVER.

Hon. John B. Weaver, of Colfax, Ia., a candidate for the presidency on the Populist ticket, in 1902, writes from the National hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I can unhesitatingly recommend your remedy, Peruna, for coughs, colds and catarrh. I am satisfied that it will do all you claim for it."—John B. Weaver.

more closely diagnosed it would be called catarrh. The specific cure for catarrh is Peruna.

A German Baron Gives Pe-ru-na his heartiest Endorsement.

Baron J. M. Vendenheim, 1225 G St., N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"For a long time, until I came into this climate, I had congratulated myself upon having a perfectly sound pair of lungs. But I began to have little coughs and annoying colds that shook my faith in my breathing apparatus. This continued two winters until I had lost health and strength to an alarming degree. Peruna cured me and restored my strength. You are at liberty to use my heartiest endorsement of Peruna as to hold him in honor because he will walk in the path of peace. No rough rider he! His ideal is of a happy, prosperous, contented people. He would seek no bloody glory, in which quest treasure is poured out, young lives cut short and public conscience blunted. The truest symbol of our glory in his eyes, would be a freeman beneath his own vine and fig tree, with his family about him, after the fall of the day, with none to molest or make him afraid, and with no predatory trust licensed to take from him a part of his daily wage. To realize such an idea requires no great sagacity, and, in which quest, it will lead to no international disputes or foreign wars. It requires but honor and friendship abroad; justice and equality at home.

PERSONAL FITNESS. I do not need to tell of the personal fitness of George Gray for the great office of president. You know it. The country knows it. He has lived in the white light of publicity for 20 years. His public services have been distinguished and known of all men.

For 14 years he was in the senate, elected by Delaware, and serving the whole United States. That service was the steady, calm, convincing service of a lofty patriot and true Democrat. With an intellect of the first order, guided by a judgment calm and sure, he won the admiration and confidence of our country.

He served on the commission which made peace with Spain, and we all know now that it would have been well for our country if his patriotic advice concerning the terms of that treaty—so earnestly and eloquently urged—had been heeded by the government.

Upon the bench, Judge Gray, as lawyers know, has taken rank equal to any of the illustrious men who adorn the federal judiciary.

Who shall measure the service he rendered the people of this whole land in settling the great anthracite coal strike as chairman of the commission of arbitration? Organized labor knew him and organized capital knew him, and when his work was done they united in the cry: "Behold a just and fearless man!"

WHOLE COUNTRY KNOWS HIM. Gentlemen, the whole country knows him as you know him. His character is not concealed. His opinions are wrapped in no mystery. Silence does not hedge him around about. His fitness is like a city set upon a hill which cannot be hid.

His neighbors know him even better than the country, and among them there is but one voice. His private life is as pure as a spring on the mountain side, with clear gushing water from the alving rock. With courage as keen as the Damascus blade, with heart of pure gold, with life dedicated to the public good, power cannot overawe him nor wealth corrupt him. Trained and seasoned by experience and service in lofty public station, yet in the full vigor and power of magnificent manhood, he stands ready to your hand to make a great and moderate president.

HAS WINNING TRAIT.

With all his other qualities to win approval, he has the winning trait of society. He is not a blunderer. He does not seek or desire the presidency. We would prefer others to himself. We name him here as a candidate for president not because he longs for the place or desires to wield its mighty power, but because Democracy needs him and the country needs him.

George Gray has a name entwined with victory. Inscribe that name upon your banners and faction will hush, dissension cease. His nomination here means your triumph in November.

DELAWARE OFFERS HIM.

Delaware, small in size, has been called the diamond state. We know not why unless it be in compliment to the manhood of some of the public men who have adorned and bejeweled her history. We offer you, to be set in the glorious crown of Democracy, a dia-
